

London Free Press, London, Ontario, Canada

Letter to Editor

UNLESS otherwise noted, these letters are to be considered unedited. The opinions expressed in the letters and comments are those of the writers and not of The London Free Press.

Missing was a discussion about the occurrence of sexual assault in relationships where domestic violence is present.

In order for victims and their children to receive appropriate support services, it is important that police officers, prosecutors, probation officers, service providers, and judges be properly trained to recognize cases where sexual assault has occurred.

Failure to identify sexual assault situations leaves victims and their children at a greater risk for future victimization and a lack of offender accountability.

POSTED BY: Eugene M. Hyman, San Jose, California